

Nested stacks

- Nested stacks are stacks as part of other stacks
- They allow you to isolate repeated patterns / common components in separate stacks and call them from other stacks
- Example:
 - Load Balancer configuration that is re-used
 - Security Group that is re-used
- Nested stacks are considered best practice
- To update a nested stack, always update the parent (root stack)