

Section Introduction

- When we start deploying multiple applications, they will inevitably need to communicate with one another
- There are two patterns of application communication

1) Synchronous communications (application to application)

2) Asynchronous / Event based (application to queue to application)

